Mango was first grown in India over 5000 years ago, and the tree itself can live up to 300 years. It has more than 400 varieties, and India is considered the Mango capital of the world. It is rich in antioxidants. In the Jain religion, Goddess Ambika is represented sitting under a mango tree. Also, you won't believe the roots of a mango tree can grow 20 ft deep and tree can grow up to 130ft.

Pomegranates are dated as old as 1000 BC and a tree can live up to 200 years. Across the world, it has more than 760 varieties. It does not contain saturated fats or cholesterol. In Hinduism, it symbolizes prosperity & fertility. 1 pomegranate can hold more than 1000 seeds & it belongs to the berry family which is native to the middle east.

The leathery fruit holds a special place in Hindu mythology, called the Fruits of Gods. It is low calorie, highly rich in manganese, potassium, etc., and has antifungal, and antiviral properties. This humble fruit has unlimited usage in treatments of Ayurveda, Siddha, Unani and Chinese medicines. As an interesting fact, its powder is the main ingredient used for the majority of toothpaste which helps in strengthening teeth and gums.

Singapore Cherries were brought in the 1600s to America and a typical life span of a tree is 15-30 years. There are 1000 different varieties of cherries across the world. As a health benefit, they are loaded with antioxidants that help to boost blood levels and reduce stress. In old Buddhist stories, the cherry is representative of fertility & femininity. Also, they are the most likable plant to provide shelter and food to many birds & animals.

Chikoo is native to southern Mexico and Yucatan, and India is one of the largest producers of Chikoo fruit. In Ayurveda, it is used for its anti-inflammatory benefits and is also considered a good source of dietary fiber. As a cultural depiction, the city of Dahanu holds an annual Chikoo Festival to draw tourists and tropical fruit lovers from around the region. As an interesting fact, the natural tannins in the flesh of the Chikoo are antioxidants and have antiviral, antibacterial, anti-parasitic, etc.
